Introduction

Sacred Father, I beckon you hither to accept my words and bring forth your words in a union of Blessed Truth. Being humble in this world gone mad with ego seems an unbearable task of self-punishment, but I release myself into your arms to direct all that is to follow herein.

Sacred Father, it seems so natural for us to turn away from all that you have created here and to be comforted within the physical sense of self, fashioned over the eons of time. We see no need to turn away from this comfort, even when the voice within tells us that this is wrong.

Sacred Father, how are you able to be so patient with us when we ignore all that you have brought before us? How can you remain patient with us when we twist your words to fit our perceptions?

Sacred Father, the times of extreme darkness envelop us with slogans of security and safety. Deliver us from the veil of forgetting and deliver us into complete Freedom.

Sacred Father, through me pass the Eternal Flame of Truth and Light so that my words may find their marks and unbind the belts of energy that keeps us in bondage to the non-believers.

I step into your arms and accept all that you find in your heart to share with us herein. Lead me forth into this night. I AM... as you found me.

Abraham of Melchizedek

The planet is currently experiencing a transformation of consciousness that entails some pretty difficult “growing pains.” I present this book in an attempt to explain what aspects of our collective consciousness are being discarded and what aspects are being expanded with the intent to lessen the difficulties inherent in this transformation. If we can awaken to what’s really happening around us and replace the unknown with the known, we can dramatically improve our situation and lessen the impact of what is currently affecting our planet.

Therefore, I put forth herein that we are moving from a collective mindset of spiritual adolescence to a more mature spiritual consciousness of adult authority and responsibility. As we move from adolescence to adulthood, we experience serious changes in the internal matrix of our holographic spirit/energy body's sacred geometry that affects the levels of emotional, physical, mental, and spiritual awareness. We are currently experiencing all of these aspects on both an individual and collective level as well as on a planetary level. As the sacred geometry of the living body of Mother Earth changes, expands, and adapts to the new cosmic energy presence, so are we reflecting these changes in our bodies. Additionally, as with any individual's movement through and out of adolescence, the energetic imbalances resulting from this internal energy matrix shift often results in external disruptions that can cause serious imbalances in the collective social fabric. When I refer to various belief systems as being adolescence, I do not throw this out with the intent to lessen their value. Everything within the mystery of the Creator's genius serves a meaningful purpose, yet man must dictate the eventual direction to which this mystery manifests its purpose on this planet.

In that regard and in this work, I am going after a particular mindset, herein referred to as The Mammonite Agenda. (Note-Mammonite: One who has become subservient to a belief system rooted in Mammon. Mammon: Obsession with physical reality.) This Agenda has captured and dominated a majority of the world's consciousness for thousands of years. A mindset is a "locked in" choice of perceptions that engage the mind and convinces it to disregard any alternative way of "seeing." When humans focus solely on the brain/mind and disregard the body and Sacred Mind they are not using all of its capabilities and are seeing the world, life, and themselves from a limited scope of perception. The depth of engagement and the facilities inherent in the human construct that we use to engage with our environment determine the way in which we view the world, our Creator, and ourselves. Without engaging our bodies and our Sacred Mind with the intent of divine awakening, we simply must rely on blind faith and the interpreters of blind faith to provide us with guidance in our relationship with a higher power.

All of us have become locked into a ridged system of perception. As I shall attempt to prove, this mindset inhibits the freedom to break through into alternative planes of truth and other worlds of perception that would catapult us into a more hopeful, healthy, happy, humorous, and harmonious future. Identifying this rigid system and becoming aware of the burdens that it imposes upon the entire world is the true thrust of this work. Understanding the problem becomes the first step in creating a solution. Providing a solution to this enormous problem and encouraging the reader to invest his/her energy into applying free will into this program is the hope of my effort.

All structures of growth within this world are layered and programmed by the Creator to force the populous to become aware of, adapt to, and integrate themselves into the different levels of awareness. Therefore, when I state in this work that we are moving out of our adolescence and into our adulthood, spiritually and religiously, I am referring to the different structures of growth that are inherent in this planet. I am reinforcing the notion within the reader that the maturity that these levels of awareness demand before allowing one access to the treasures held within, is a given, regardless of what body of knowledge one is attempting to master. I am suggesting that all levels of growth within the system of change on this planet involve chaotic movement before one has the internal capacity to expand into greater levels of human and spiritual awareness within the totality of the divine plan.

Therefore, do not view this work as an affront to your present state of beliefs and your faith, but as a platform from which you can increase and add immense proportions to your faith, leaving behind the blindness and moving into sight within the Light. As you read this book, please try to accept that your faith can attain a greater dimension of truth and a more joyous internal feeling of knowing and awareness that the Creator intended for you to know.

Religion in America, and in most places around the world, seems to be rooted in, and evolving around, a concept of blind acceptance of something they label as “faith.” Faith seems to be dependent upon the words and interpretations of countless numbers of people who lived on this planet before me, and possibly including me, who spoke and wrote words bound up in this concept of allegiance to faith. Faith, generally speaking, is a concept based on an impersonal interaction with, and a trust in, an objective form and/or a subjective ideology or theology that has been fashioned by the experiences of people who lived here before us. Faith seems to be something that one invests a lot of hope in, relies upon to deliver specific results to one's life and/or afterlife, and depends upon the expected cooperation with a Higher Power. The concept of faith is apparently invested in a moral fortitude that is seen as a guiding light for the consciousness of the Creator. Faith has served the purpose of moving us through the adolescence stage of spiritual/religious growth, but a new, more expanded perception of faith will also guide us into a world of greater possibilities and a belief system rooted in a more mature adult consciousness. As adolescents we needed the guidance of this expected cooperation with a Higher Power and the "father figures" that helped us with this phase of our soul's development. Just as children need the same from a parent, we willingly surrendered our power over to this spiritual authority. However, in this approaching Fifth World, we are being asked to take a more direct and mature responsibility for our own soul's destiny and for the soul of this planet. (Fifth World: the prophesied coming of a thousand years of peace and harmony.)

However, our investment in this blind faith is currently having a diminishing return. It's time to re-evaluate our investment. If you've never experienced anything other than "blind faith," how can you possibly know whether or not it's blind or even worthy of faith? This book is about experiencing the other side of blind faith. This book challenges blind faith, those who promote this doctrine of association with the Creator, and the increasing shadow side of this relationship that is leading us toward unimaginable levels of destruction.

When I say that this book challenges blind faith, I am not attempting to take on every religious devotee in the world by declaring his or her faith to be an illusion of some self-manufactured ideology. What I will be challenging is the mindset that has overwhelmed the institutions that fashion our social fabric and how this mindset is corrupting our individual spiritual authority. The term "challenging" in this work refers to putting forth an opportunity to open oneself to a larger picture and scope of understanding of their current faith and chosen belief system. If one cannot accept change and expansion, one is simply not growing and maturing. Humans mature on all levels. The planet matures on all levels. The Universe matures on all levels. Why would it be such an offensive statement to say that we are maturing spiritually? Only those who feel their power base and their economic stability threatened by this truth will lash out the most intensely and try to resist change.

This book is about how to accept a Living God into your life, not through the global mainstream Mammonite religious definition of faith, but through a more realistic intuitive knowing, feeling, and doubt-free awareness of His active presence in your life. This isn't some lecture about someone's historical interpretation of the life and times of someone else. This book isn't about selling you an agenda that carries empty promises of vast unimaginable rewards. This is a book about challenging you to enter into the greatest adventure of your life. It's about turning everything we have been taught for thousands of years upside down and finding a truth that already exist—right beside us. It's how to relate to your Creator and develop a spiritual life through the challenge of engagement.

Engagement requires more than just pretense and agenda fashioned from the minds of previous generations. Engagement is more than a passive relationship with a belief system that is supported with one's subjective moral assessment. Engagement cannot function within a system based upon entertainment with illusions. Engagement requires a discipline and commitment that far surpasses the most conventional modern day theologies.

Engagement is a belief system followed up and supported with a focus of intent upon the energy of that which forms the structure of the belief system being considered. This focus of intent demands a forbearance of will that projects one's consciousness, with a full and unlimited open heart, a pure and unencumbered body, and a fully functioning sensitive Sacred Mind into the substance and form of the belief system. This process of engagement ignites a return of energy that leads to self-discovery. Self-discovery, when applied with this energetic formula of self-expression, defeats dogma, deception, ignorance and superstition. Engagement requires a concerted, disciplined effort to shed the energetic blocks of Mammon that desensitize us from knowing the active presence of God in our lives. Engagement is about becoming a healthy, totally aware, and fully functioning "cell" of divine Light within the body of our Creator...our Universe and the Cosmic Family of His Hierarchy.

This book is about applying ourselves in a direction that produces qualified, doubt-free awareness of His presence and His active intimate involvement in the choreography of our lives. This is self-discovery, not from the vantage point of attempting to adequately manage one's life from the lower self/animal instinct-survival adaptability sense, but from a more evolved, elevated state of awareness. This book is a step-by-step formula/puzzle about how to get there.

Outlined herein is the historical evolution of a dominant mindset that has consistently, purposefully distracted us from the truth of our relationship with our Creator and armored our bodies against both the natural energies of this planet and our awareness of His active presence in our world. I have labeled this dominant mindset, The Mammonite Agenda. This mindset, which has infected all of us to one degree or another, is directly responsible for a majority of the suffering on the planet. This collective mindset has been, and continues to be, the weapon of choice of the forces of darkness whose design is to conquer and control the mind of man, and thus control the freewill of mankind. This insidious disease has achieved incredible strides towards accomplishing that goal over thousands of years of massive indoctrination. This book is about breaking the spine of this disease and returning our focus into the natural world of the relationship between man, God, our planet, and our celestial hosts—particularly Mother Mary.

This work is a viewpoint about “The Fall of Mankind from the Grace of the Creator.” I attempt to shed some light upon what that event was all about, how it affects us today in our daily lives, and the devastation that this separation has brought generations upon generations of humans. This is a story about growing up spiritually and developing a spiritual maturity, both individually and collectively, that demands we engage with the truth about who we are, where we are, where we've been, and where we need to be going. This story has the keys to opening oneself up to true “Oneness” with the Creator and removing all doubt and superstition with this relationship. Within this body of knowledge is the supposition that we are and have been manipulated by unseen forces of darkness that steer us toward negative self-perceptions and destructive tendencies. I refer to these unseen forces of darkness and present them as substantive inorganic energy based entities that are actively involved in our lives 24/7. The purpose of these dark forces is to test our resolve to command the energetic presence required for expanding our soul into higher realms of consciousness within the Light. This book discusses and promotes the fact that we are ready to take on these unseen forces and defeat them. This book prophesizes that the institutionalized leaders who believe that they are protecting us from these forces, with the self-centered justification that they are serving God, are actually consciously and unconsciously aiding and abetting these forces. By both refusing to release the knowledge that they hold and by acting to aggressively suppress any information, seen by them as a threat to their position and power, that comes to the forefront of the collective consciousness, they defeat the purpose upon which they stand. This book is about casting out the deceivers and corrupters from our lives by reaching into our inner truth and choosing our own perceptions from which to fashion our world. This is about the power of ONE—the I AM.

Man must not only command and control the environment of the planet upon which he resides, but he must also take charge of the future journey of his soul. When Jesus said: “Only through me does one come into the presence of the Lord,” he was referring to the process that he had engaged to activate his interpersonal relationship with his Creator. He was saying that we must activate these same internal holographic energetic mechanics within his sacred geometry to gain the portal of freedom and awareness to transcend into the active presence of God in our lives on this planet and in the life hereafter. The idea that Jesus, or any other spiritual prophet of major consequence, was personalizing his process and trying to define himself as the only portal to divination is a theory that has been propagated by individuals who have succumb to the Mammonite Agenda and Mammonite mindset. These individuals are totally disengaged from the energies of the planet, the active presence of the Creator, and only represent, at best, an alien life form on a planet to which they have zero understanding of the energetic matrixes of this sphere of evolving life. Of course, they also present themselves as the only spiritually authoritative voices of reason when discussing the life of Jesus, or any other prophet of consequence, and expect everyone to obediently follow their lead. This book is about debunking this myth and standing accountable to the sacrifice of Jesus and the other prophets by becoming that which Jesus commanded all of his Disciples, both then and now, to become. This book is about how to discover this truth within you, at your own pace, and at your own direction.

In support of this hypothesis, this theory affirms that our earthly environment is specifically designed by our Creator to assist in our soul's evolution. By providing man with the freedom to enjoy both a resting place and a multi-dimensional series of energy levels that serve as mirrors to our soul's self-reflection, the uniqueness of this planet within the overall scheme of spirit/soul evolution needs to be defined outside of the Mammonite Agenda. Pure engagement with God, in whatever context, or name that any religion defines His energy, and the Light of Divine Truth, together with the unique multidimensional energies of this planet, are necessary and important requirements for moving forward with our spiritual evolution. The formula for our soul's transcendence includes, but goes beyond, simple moral justice. Being a good person, or a good (insert religious preference), isn't the guaranteed ticket into Heaven, Paradise, or anywhere else. You must train and develop your spirit/energy body to prepare the way for the journey into the Light. This is what Jesus (Yeshewah: as he prefers to be called by his true name and shall be, periodically, for clarity, throughout the rest of this book) and many other enlightened beings taught and it is again presented here under the definition of—"engagement."

Developing the ability to engage with God isn't something that occurs overnight or over any short term, regardless of your religious preference or practice. Engagement only occurs after you have returned your body to its natural state of being. Very few people can rid themselves of the energy blocks to this natural state of being without a great deal of sacrifice and discipline. Many are called, but few answer. This book is about answering.

It is also an "in-your-face" challenge to spiritual awareness that reflects my particular personality type. I have debated this approach with myself over and over again. It's almost as if the world has been sold on a concept of spirituality and a prophet of God being all "warm and fuzzy." Perhaps "warm and fuzzy" isn't going to do it anymore. In a world where people are blowing themselves up, blowing up children, sexually abusing children, and blowing up other people to acquire the earth's resources, all in the name of God, maybe it's time that a book on spiritual truth needs to be written in an "in-your-face" format. Maybe we need to stop denying our faults, turn everything upside down, and try to understand just how messed up we really are. Perhaps many of the "truths" put forward by the "experts" are actually falsehoods that have captured the imaginations of mankind for far too long and led us into dark places where we never should have gone. Maybe now is the time for mankind to demand more out of their leaders. To accomplish that, mankind needs alternative frames of reference upon which they can base their perceptions and command their attentions. This work is about stressing the urgency of change.

Because my background is primarily Christian, Christianity will be a focus of my attention throughout this book. Since I currently see Christianity being "hijacked" by the hard-core Mammonites and gaining more and more media attention, I am especially concerned about this direction of the teachings of Yeshewah. However, we must remember that every movement of knowledge gathering begins at the most basic level and then graduates into larger bodies of knowledge as the student's capacity to absorb knowledge expands. Christianity and all other religions must and will evolve through their growth stages along the ladder of maturity and the growing pains will continue to be evident as the ones who don't want to grow and change continue to try and force their position upon others. Additionally, those who haven't really explored their spiritual nature, in any religious or spiritual path, must and will begin their path at the beginning, not in the more experienced levels of knowing. You simply don't begin your education in graduate school.

Learning to engage and having the knowledge of what is necessary to develop this ability is central to the maturation of Christianity and a very important antidote to the Mammonite's attempt to enforce their agenda. Whether or not Christians have the gumption to make the commitment and attain the discipline necessary to learn engagement is another question. This is a very difficult question to answer, especially considering the amount of Mammonite opposition and indoctrination that has captured the true message of Yeshewah.

A very good way of seeing the evolution of Christianity is to examine the current flow of doctrine that is gaining popularity among a considerable majority of Christians. In a recent best selling book, the head of a “pop culture church” in Southern California declares: “The way you see your life shapes your life.” I agree with that statement. However, in the next chapter, he says: “We’re not completely happy here because we’re not supposed to be! Earth is not our final home; we were created for something much better.”

I’m sure that the author has very meaningful intentions and has helped many people. He is providing a service to seekers of some type of spiritual roots in their life at the most basic level, and in that way, he is serving God. However, any Christian, or any other religious figurehead, who attempts to guide people from a point of reference that is dominated by a sense of hopelessness for life on this planet by disrespecting the energies of this planet, is serving Mammon, not the Creator. They are doing a disservice to God, themselves, the planet, and the children. Good intentions aside, a more mature and engaging attitude and approach to the teachings of Yeshewah must become a central issue to all Christians. The same can be said about any of the other prophets where their true message of engagement with the Creator has been overshadowed by the rigid mindset of the Mammonite Agenda.

Anyone who has actually engaged with the active presence of the living God and engaged with the multi-dimensional energies of this planet by spending sufficient time outside in nature to do so knows that God wants and commands that you to find happiness on earth. Those who have found this connection with nature know how to accomplish happiness and have developed the God given talents inside of themselves to accomplish engagement, some at the most basic levels and some at the higher levels. Looking at earth as a way-station of some sort, before we actually enter into “something else better,” whether labeled Paradise, Heaven, or some other religious dogmatic classification, comes from someone who is simply not engaged with their Creator regardless of their ego based self-declarations. They are putting forth “educated” guesses that come from blind faith allegiance to the interpretations of some ancient texts that are interpretations of other ancient texts and so forth and so on. Usually these Mammonites will validate their expressed opinions by simply stating that this is what (substitute the name of any prophet) would do and that’s the end of the discussion. However, all of these ancient texts, and the authors of them, put forth a common message: You all have the ability to command the attention of your Creator and you must make the attempt to accomplish this.

If you are unengaged with both the planet and the Creator that created you, of course you will think that happiness is impossible. I think any other interpretation of that statement demonstrates some level of pathos. Since “The Fall from Grace,” a majority of mankind has become unengaged with both the active presence of God and the multi-dimensional energies of the planet. They have substituted an obsession with material things, referred to by Yeshewah as Mammon, to fill the void created by this separation and developed reliance upon the ego to drive them shamelessly into this quagmire of self-destruction.

Consequently, we have generations of well intended, wise men and women, attempting to formulate meaning and purpose to life and existence from a limited scope of perception. The focus of their perception overtly dismisses the source of our beginning and the purpose to our end. Unless you are actively engaged with God’s presence and the energies of this planet, you are disoriented and confused, vulnerable to ignorance and superstition, and have no substantive conception of the source of your beginning or the purpose to your end. How can you measure the value of present time and gain true happiness without this connection? You have no point of reference from which to measure present time other than the limited perception of the teachings of other disenfranchised individuals. You simply cannot establish a true link to the source of your beginning and the purpose of your end unless you are engaged. Where does this leave your infinite soul? How does this disenfranchisement affect your daily life?

You cannot gain spiritual maturity and soul evolution until you have successfully engaged with the multi-dimensional energies of this planet, demonstrated a fearlessness of the unknown, and captured your own will and focus of intent. This isn’t a game for the timid and obviously not for the Mammonites, the Mammonite elite, and the Mammonite priest/kings.

This book is about giving you alternative points of reference from which your measure of present time can become more accountable and productive to you. This book is about awakening to the ancient root cause of our present day dilemma and understanding the symptoms of today's crisis from a viewpoint outside of mainstream thought and perception. Hopefully, through this refocus of the collective attentions, back to the active presence of our Creator and the multidimensional energies of this planet, we can realign our priorities and make decisions from a different place. If so, then we can apply our resources toward creating a better world for the children and the next seven generations of children.

What this book is not about is any appearance of trying to understand and figure out the wisdom of the Creator. Coming to terms with His active presence on the planet and learning to work with the multidimensional energies of the planet does not specifically give anyone an insight into the wisdom of the Creator. God may speak to you and provide you guidance, but the messages are simply guidelines within which personal decisions can be reached. This is the purpose of the self-reflective nature of the multidimensional energies on this planet that has been endowed with the energy of freewill. Under no circumstances am I trying to represent that this information is a direct order from God. God leaves the option up to you to engage or not. No one can force that effort forward. No one has a "lock" on the right or wrong way to being a true Christian, Muslim, Jew, Hindu, Buddhist, or any other major religion. Only Mammonites, of any religion, will take a process of spiritual maturation, of which they lack any understanding, and try to personalize it, package it, and market it. The Mammonite priest/kings have taken the word of God, absent of the awareness of the human's engagement with the Holy Spirit, and diluted its power to support and maintain their own positions of power. Although Mammonite priest/kings do not exist in all levels of the priesthood, there are those who owe allegiance to Mammon. Their fantasies and illusions are based solely on their physical/mental perceptual analysis of their Mammonite worldview.

Our refusal to accept that we can actively find our own connection to God and to our celestial hosts through engagement has resulted in a compounding, complex set of polarities that are thousands of years old. Certainly the polarities in today's world continue to build and build. Inside of these colliding, competing energetic paradoxes rest the true test of mankind. The gap of understanding, as wide as it is and as unattainable as it appears continues to propel us forward toward our collective destiny as a planet. The lessons that we face and the results of our choice to separate from our Creator continue to challenge all of our basic assumptions. However, we can and will attain an earthly bliss by conquering this ego-driven madness that has turned a planet designed by our Creator to be a gift to man's soul into a burden of continued suffering. This book attempts to define the borders of our limitations in order to help everyone create their own set of signpost and guidelines. This book seeks to propel each of you out of your drudgery of survival adaptability and into a wondrous brave new world of adventure and exploration, as opposed to the Mammonite definition of a New World Order. Included here are the basic essentials necessary to resist and defeat this Mammonite effort at total domination of this planet.

Another unique aspect of this book, versus other sources of spiritual information, is that it becomes very clear in this presentation that you must participate in the process to gain any valid measure of the truth. Those sitting outside of this picture and critiquing it without giving it a strong effort are simply seeking to defend themselves and/or something important to them. Their denial is based in laziness and their contempt is rooted in their ego.

This participation factor, as opposed to the western scientific modality of objective observation, becomes a vital aspect when qualifying and quantifying any new proposal, regardless of its source. Many of the problems that exist on the planet today come from these Mammonite "experts" who sit outside the circle and give "expert" instructions from their Mammonite fashioned "objective" viewpoint. By refusing to purify themselves and obtain a true objective state and stance, they dismiss actively engaging with the energies of this planet and their Creator as pathological foolishness. With labels such as atheist intellectualism, theist philosophy, ontology, creationism, intelligent design, materialistic evolution, random mutation, and intelligence replication these gilded men of knowledge and wisdom banter about with opinions and self-edifying semantics designed to qualify their mental observations and brain-focused exercises. But, have they ever sat outside in the natural elements for a sufficient time to develop their natural abilities of perceiving the multidimensional worlds of Grandmother Earth? Have they used this medium to engage with the active presence of the Creator? No, most likely they have not.

In that regard, I assure you that every aspect of this book has been researched personally by me and tested for validity over the past twenty-five years before stepping forward with the information. When I say that you can engage with the active presence of the Creator in your life in present time, I am declaring this from having achieved this incredible connection... sometimes, and for some strange reason, in the grocery store. I am NOT, however, at this juncture in my development, saying that I have a handle on how to hold it constantly and consistently in today's world. This is my current challenge and perhaps a subject for further works.

The book has been written like a jigsaw puzzle and if you pull the pieces together, you will get the complete picture. It has also been written with a lot of channeling present. Therefore, I advise you to read this slowly and thoroughly. By that, I mean that the information has been presented in a way that it will often engage your Mammonite lenses of perception through the activation of an emotional attachment to something inside of the sentence/paragraph. If you slow down and push through that reaction, you will find an internal shift out of the Mammonite mindset and into a new sense of individual freedom. Be patient, this may take some time to accomplish. You may have to read some the sentences several times. However, just as one must "push" and "pull" through the energetic challenges of life to find this active engagement presence of mind, so must one engage with this book on the same level. I suppose the test begins now.

I hope you enjoy this information and find the inspiration to venture forth regardless of the internal resistance and external criticism you will be experiencing against this possibility. It is a difficult climb, but a very rewarding one. I do not labor under the illusion that what I offer up in this work will in some way receive immediate attention and amazing results in my lifetime. It is my intention to plant seeds of consciousness so that future generations may find a harvest worthy of great rejoicing. Our challenge is not to destroy the Mammonite system within which all of us are caught, but to see the system for exactly what it is and re-order our energies, resources, perceptions, and intentions to give the Mammonite Agenda only the limited amount of attention it deserves and no more.

Every great accomplishment of mankind started with a single flash of illumination. I hope this work will create illuminations all over the globe. May love find its way into your heart and the colors of the Universe invade the recesses of your mind. We are the determiners of the substance, form, and understanding of our world. Our choices of attentions structure the substance, form, and understanding. Our perceptions determine our choices. The focus of our attentions leads us into perceiving. Perhaps the wisdom contained herein will refashion your choice of focus.

Definitions

Fifth World: the prophesied coming of a thousand years of peace and harmony.

Mammonite: One who has become subservient to a belief system rooted in Mammon.

Mammon: Obsession with physical reality.

Shekinah: The presence of God, the sanctification of the molecular universe by the Holy Spirit.

Shekinah Universe: The inner universe created for the transformation of the basic building blocks of intelligence out of the sea of the Eternal to go into the presence of the Father.

104:23 This is the process of transforming the human evolution to co-participate with the Higher Evolution. This process of transformation is directed through the proper pyramidal frequencies of Light and balanced by the energies of the Shekinah universe. The Shekinah universe is the body substratum which allows this world to be transmuted into the higher worlds from its most intricate parts.

24 Thus, the Shekinah universe transforms the basic building blocks of intelligence out of the Sea of the Eternal to go into the presence of the Father:

43 This evolution from the physical body of creation to the higher intelligence involves a deeper understanding of life as multi-dimensional evolution where individuality does not count, only the continuity of the human species. To this end the physical body must be initiated into the Light before it can receive the Overself Body of Light which is the true I AM identity. <sup>1</sup>
